at the Art Galley of St. Albert
SOLD OUT

St. Albert, AB – An evening of art for your eyes and ears. Revered multi-instrumentalist, composer, and arranger Kevin Fox performs a stripped down offering of his jazzy folk-pop originals at the Art Gallery of St. Albert on November 18th. In this Arden Theatre On Stage series first, the Halifax native will combine his signature instrument and charismatic voice to create a unique and captivating musical tapestry, surrounded by emotionally stirring and thought provoking images by professional photographer and St. Albert resident, David Bowering.

If you have come in contact with Canadian music at all over the last number of years, chances are you have either seen or heard the work of Kevin Fox. He has worked in-studio and on-stage with a variety of artists – from Sarah Harmer to Tom Cochrane, Celine Dion to Kathleen Edwards – and has toured extensively with artists Chantal Kreviazuk, Raine Maida, and Steven Page. But even more impressive than his list of collaborators are the sounds he creates by looping cello and vocal lines to become a one-man orchestral band.

His sophomore album, Songs for Cello & Voice, was released in 2008 to critical praise and further developed his unique fusion of classical instrumentation into original popular music. Kevin Fox sings, plucks, bows, and taps his cello in a one-of-a-kind style that the Toronto Star noted as being “stylistically impossible to peg, he roams between acoustic folky pop and high-end cinematic art music, yet his lyrics ... are as sharp and focused as any seasoned poet.”

In his debut solo exhibition at the Art Gallery of St. Albert, David Bowering exhibits photographs from a four month period spent as a photojournalist embedded with troops in Afghanistan. He grants us rare insights into the lives of the Afghan people and the harsh terrain they inhabit, exposing the reality of the military presence and the repercussions of human conflict.
